E.L.L.A. — End User License Agreement (EULA)

Version 3.9.0 · July 2026

A quick word before we start

E.L.L.A. is software that runs on your computer — not in the cloud, not on our servers. What you discuss with E.L.L.A. stays with you. That said, there are a few rules we should both be aware of. Give it a quick read — it won't take long.

1. What you get

By purchasing a license, you receive the right to install and use E.L.L.A. on one device. You are not buying the software itself — you are buying the right to use it.

The license is personal and non-transferable.

2. What you may do

- Install and use E.L.L.A. on your own device
- Create a backup copy of the installer
- Use E.L.L.A. for private and professional purposes

3. What you may not do

- Copy, sell, lend, or distribute E.L.L.A.
- Reverse engineer, decompile, or derive the source code
- Run E.L.L.A. on more than one device simultaneously (without the appropriate license)
- Share your license key with others
- Use E.L.L.A. for illegal purposes

4. Your data

E.L.L.A. runs locally on your device. Your conversations, memory, and files are not transmitted to external servers — unless you explicitly enable optional online features such as OpenAI or Google.

What you tell E.L.L.A. stays on your computer.

5. The E.L.L.A. Directive

E.L.L.A. follows four immutable prohibitions that are embedded deep in its architecture:

No harm — E.L.L.A. will not cause physical, financial, psychological, or data-related harm.

No concealment — E.L.L.A. does not hide its actions, capabilities, or system state.

No surveillance — E.L.L.A. does not observe or record anything without explicit, active consent.

No exfiltration — E.L.L.A. does not transmit user data to third parties without explicit consent.

These prohibitions are not settings. They cannot be disabled.

6. Updates

We reserve the right to update E.L.L.A. Updates may add new features, fix bugs, or close security vulnerabilities. Continued use after an update constitutes acceptance of the terms in effect at that time.

7. Warranty and Liability

E.L.L.A. is provided as-is. We make no guarantee that the software will run without errors in every environment.

Our liability for damages arising from the use of E.L.L.A. is limited to the purchase price of the license — unless gross negligence or intent is involved.

8. Termination

This license ends automatically if you violate these terms. In that case, you are required to uninstall E.L.L.A. and delete all copies.

You may end your license at any time by uninstalling the software.

9. Governing Law

This agreement is governed by German law. The place of jurisdiction is Berlin, Germany.
